Happy reading, everyone!

Can they win the biggest gamble of their lives?
After a near fatal accident, Reegan McGrath is warned never to come back to Willows Bluff. For years she stayed away despite the haunting nightmares. Now, with her grandmother dying, Reegan returns to find an evolving second sight, a man she is fated to fall in love with, and an overwhelming reaction to an old foe.

Well aware that the people in Willows Bluff still believe she murdered her father, Bernadette Howard is reluctant to open up to anyone, least of all Reegan McGrath. But fate has other ideas when the two women uncover their connection to a decades-old curse.

To unravel the mystery that’s destined to destroy them, Reegan and Bernie need to put aside their mutual distrust. They must “see what was unseen, learn what was unknown, right what was wronged, or suffer the same.’’

Review by Gabrielle Sally

Have you ever read a story that put your mind into a tailspin and you found you couldn't stop thinking about it? For me, that's BETWEEN DEATH AND DESTINY.

Reegan and Bernadette are as different as can be and there's definitely no love lost between them. However, in order to survive, they must work together to "see what was unseen, learn what was unknown, right what was wronged, or suffer the same." And that won't be easy. This puzzle is as perplexing as it is all-consuming. With each new thread, another layer is revealed, leading them (and us) down the proverbial rabbit hole to a conclusion that I didn't see coming. Here is where I will add, it's difficult to talk about this story without giving away spoilers.

This story will knock you off your feet as friends become foes, enemies are not what they seem, and allies pop up in unlikely places. As the women dive in feet first, the mystery begins to unravel and the past and the present begin to meld together as patterns emerge and the truth unfolds.
BETWEEN DEATH AND DESTINY by W.L. Brooks is an incredible read and I can’t recommend it enough. I am absolutely wowed and overwhelmed at how well Ms. Brooks managed to feed us all the characters in such a way (avoiding spoilers), both past and present, as to keep us on the edge of our seats and in no doubt as to who anyone is and the roles they played. This was amazing.
Let's welcome Kailin Gow to the Romance Reviews.

AMAZON INDIE AUTHOR SUCCESS STORY

Amazon highlighted her author success story on the homepage of Amazon.com and in the book, Transformations, noting how she turned her personal life's adversities into an inspiration and drive to write empowering books and stories for girls and women of all ages.

AUTHOR ADVOCATE

Kailin has helped her fellow authors gained more exposure and connect with their readers through events she hosted and organized such as Rockin’ Holiday Author Signing at the House of Blues at Disneyland Anaheim, Rockin’ Hollywood at Madame Tussauds Hollywood, and even the Naughty Mafia Las Vegas Event. She also publishes a trade magazine using Harvard-like case studies of publishers and Book Retailers for Authors and Publishers Only, called Authors Voice.

Q Wow, that’s amazing! What hurdles did you have to overcome before you became a published author? How long did it take you?

I had to overcome the negative image people have of independent publishing back in 2001 when I first started and was one of the first authors/publishers to publish independently on Amazon. I became a digital publishing pioneer because I had to be amongst the first to use different formats and technology to bring books to market through Amazon and other retailers, including my own site. Because I was one of the first, I had to experiment with different software, different technologies, and develop the publishing process. I came up with the idea of writing all my books in a series. Even at BEA (Book Expo America where I was an invited Speaker), I told aspiring authors and self-publishers that if you write fiction, make sure to write it as a series. You’ve already created the world in Book 1, so it makes sense to continue it with more books. This was back in 2012, 2013 when Kindle was taking off.

It did not take me long to become an author. When 9/11 happened, I decided I had to write one book, and a month later, I had written and published my first book. When my book was recognized by PBS Kids, The Mental Health Association, and even Homeschooling Mothers, I knew I had to write more books so I wrote an entire series of books with an inspirational theme for girls 12 years and up. Today I still write books that empowers girls and women but for different ages and in different genres.

Q: What genre(s) do you write? Why do you write the stories that you write?

I started writing fantasy books for middle grade (starting in 2001) and then YA Books for teens in 2004, and then New Adult Fantasy/Paranormal Romance in 2010, and Contemporary Adult Romance in 2011. When two Amazon Execs suggested I write Erotica because of the Fifty Shades craze, I started writing Erotica in 2012. I write in all these genres simultaneously today, as well as in Thriller, Science Fiction, Crime, Mystery, Historical, Christian, and Non-fiction.

I write about 10,000 words a day and had always written fast due to my experience writing for Television, Cable, Radio, and Advertising as a Writer and Producer before I became a full-time author. I also write screenplays, about 1 per week.

Q: When did you know you wanted to be a writer?

Ever since I was 7 years old. I write my first ‘novel’ when I was about 9 years old about a Squirrel kingdom and squirrel knights. I even illustrated it. It looked like the illustrations in A Wind in the Willows. I never published it, but you never know...maybe I might turn it into an animated tv series someday.

Q: Do you have any writing pleasures or peeves about the work itself, the business, etc... anything you’d care to gush or rant about? Please elaborate.

I think all professions have its pleasures and peeves. There’s the good and the bad that goes with it. I love being an author, especially today when there is the freedom to publish books you want to write and publish yourself, as well as submitting books for traditionally publishing.

My peeves are filtered and given a healthy and fun humorous voice through my recent film, Author A Parody, which has won 3 Official Selections and 1 Best Comedy Film Award at Film Festivals from Los Angeles, New York, and even Italy. It is in production as a TV Series and looks at the sometimes ridiculously crazy things that happen in the author world, hence the title, Author A Parody, which is a mockumentary style show.

Q: Why do you write romance/erotic romance? What do you love about the genre?

I started writing this because I love romance myself. I live it with being married to my best friend forever hubby who is father to my beautiful little girl. We have been married for over 20 years now and still go on dates.
My romances are sprinkled with real hard advice I give from my own experience and expertise as a long-time married mom and also as an Self-esteem/women empowerment expert with degrees in Social Ecology, Psychology, and a Masters Degree.

Q: Please tell us about your latest release, Afternoon Delight by D.R. Love.

D.R. Love is my pen name and the character I play in the film/TV Series, Author A Parod. It is a short but fun outrageous steamy read about Emily Jenkins who is in London, England to attend a class on Tea. She expects the instructor to be a stodgy old man, but it turned out to be the man’s son, Gerard Harold, an almost naked male model and action film star, who also just launched his sexy London hotspot, Afternoon Delight, a tea and coffee lounge. It is a romantic but also a comedy of errors.

Also by D.R. Love are the new releases Eating Velvet about a woman named Velvet who owns a bakery called Velvet and the man she meets on Valentine’s Day who she can’t get out of her mind. It is a quick read that’s fun, romantic, and has a twist of an ending (no spoilers please!)

In YA Fantasy/Paranormal Romance, my box sets for Wicked Woods Series, PULSE Vampire Series, Bitter Frost Series, Wordwick Game Series, and The Alchemists Academy Series are not out!

Mysterious Teacher, the Prequel to PULSE Vampire Series, is a featured film that is already in production.

Bitter Frost, an ALA YALSA Award-winning book series, is already in production as a Featured Film with theatrical and streaming releases scheduled for 2019!

Q: What’s next for you? Are you currently writing anything new? Please give us a sneak peek!

I have several books in the works, as well as tv series which I am producing and directing, and films which I am writing and directing. I was fortunate to have a background as a producer, writer, and director before becoming an author so it is a natural course for me to bring my books to screen. Last year when I hosted and produced a professional production on stage at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium (where they film America’s Got Talent and the Emmy Awards), I was approached by a television and film production and distribution company with outlets in Asia, America, and Europe to co-produce my books into television shows and films. I am now very busy juggling not only an author’s full-time writing and publishing schedule but also a writer/director/producer cap for television and film. I am very blessed to be so busy in both areas.

Q: What is your advice to aspiring writers?

Write what you know. Don’t try to be someone else. Be yourself. When I publish books from other authors through my publishing company, I always look for an original voice. If you are trying to be someone else, it isn’t original.

Also, be respectful to others. Now that I’m a producer, I get lots of emails and queries from agents trying to pitch me their authors’ books in hopes I will make their books into a film or tv series. I am wary of authors who use tactics of sabotage towards other authors to make the NY Times list or use their readers to troll other authors’ books. Not classy. It’s the journey that counts.
When an author or someone gives you a chance to be at their book signing event, which costs time and a lot of money to the organizer, be respectful and thankful. When I organized the Rockin’ Holidays Author Signing at the House of Blues at Disneyland, it won Best Event in the City of Anaheim, which is a very busy event city. I had a couple of authors (NY Times ones) who acted like Divas and didn’t acknowledge me or most of the other authors at the event although the other authors were just as or more successful than they were. So my advice is, Don’t be a Diva.

Q: What is some advice you would give girls and women today?

I have a non-fiction book called STRONG by Kailin Gow, coming out in 2018, and it is for girls and women about being strong, philosophies on Strong leadership and also ways to support and encourage other women to be Strong.

There are girls out there who call themselves “feminists” which is good that they are promoting women to be strong, but they also go after and put down women who are out there in the media or as authors or even in organizations that are working towards Women Empowerment, but in a way that is not so militant and not so in-your-face. How do you think the MeToo movement got started? By standing strong and supporting other women.

Women as strong when we stand together. Women are strong by doing what they must as women to survive, even if it means to be feminine, to be womanly.

It is precisely our femininity and our uniqueness at women, that gives us our strength.

And never underestimate the power and strength of mothers. Mothers are the backbone of civilized society, and the continuation of the human race.

In Fall of 2018, I will also host and organize a girls and women’s conference called STRONG in Southern California, which will feature women leaders in the entertainment industry, in health and science, in literature, and even in politics. If you are in Southern California and you want to raise stronger girls and encourage young women and women overall to be more confident and strong; then my advice to girls and women today is to attend it.

Tempting Their Best Friend

Sienna Matthews
Madison Blake

Things to do on a Saturday night:

Watch National Geographic on TV? Check.

Sexy times with lover and best friend Ethan Hunter? Check.

Going to a party with other best friend Shelli Madison?

Not if he can help it.

But Adrian Greene doesn't have a choice, as he's not the kind of man to bail on his best friend when she needs him. Having Ethan at the same party is his only consolation until a mistletoe-induced kiss with Shelli heats his blood, sends his fantasies rioting and hardens his...body.

And when Ethan expresses the same interest in Shelli? Things get a helluva lot more interesting.

Wicked shenanigans, seduction maneuvers and naked times ensue as the men think up creative ways to tempt their best friend into something more...all without destroying their friendship.

Tempting their best friend has never been so sweet...or delicious.

helli woke up with a pounding headache. Oh god, the light! With a weary groan, she stumbled from the bed and drew the curtains closed. Ah, much better.

She cursed herself for drinking so much, then stopped when excruciating slices of pain flashed through her head.

Aspirin.

Checking to see if she was properly clothed—surprise! She was still in her party things—she wrapped herself in a bathrobe before shuffling her way out the door and down to the kitchen, her destination the cupboard where the guys kept their first-aid kit and medicine. However, she stopped at the entry before she could move one step into the kitchen.

Her head swam.

Flesh everywhere.

Adrian and Ethan lounged against the kitchen cabinets with plates in their hands, laughing and talking while eating what looked to be lunch. They were unselfconsciously naked—tanned muscular bodies, long, powerful legs and—oh my!

She couldn't really see properly through her squinting eyes but the little she saw caused blood to roar through her body and slam into her poor throbbing head. She closed her eyes, groaned and slumped against the doorway. They were gorgeous and tempting and she didn't really need it this hellish moment. She wished they would go away and leave her alone.

"Shelli?" Ethan said solicitously beside her, one hand on her brow. "Are you okay?"

Oh god. He smelled so good, so delicious. And the heat. She wanted to bask under it, wallow in it and wrap herself in it.

Goodness.

His head brushed against hers and a tingle went through her spine. The rushing blood almost split her head as well. A glass of water was placed in one hand and two tablets in the other and she gulped the medicine down. She handed the glass back and when it was taken from her, she turned to face the staircase and it was only then that she felt safe enough to open her eyes. "I'm going back to sleep." She staggered up the stairs with one hand on the banister, marveling at her self-control not to jump them and knew it was for her own self-preservation.

Back in her room, she collapsed on the bed, pressed both hands to her closed eyes and rolled as much as her aching head would allow. One thought kept screaming over and over in her mind. Why are they naked?

Damn, what was she going to do? If they persisted in going around in the buff, how was she going to stop herself from jumping them, once her hangover was gone?

About the Authors, Sienna Matthews and Madison Blake:

Sienna Matthews is a bespectacled, mild-mannered office employee by day and turns into a mad, raving writer at night and during weekends. The only thing that can be heard from her are the tap, tap, tap of her keyboard. She doesn't need food or sleep as she follows the calling of her muse.

Madison Blake is a firm believer in love and happy endings. She loves to read and write about strong heroines, and she’s on the eternal quest for the powerful, attractive, mysterious, yummy hero, the kind of man who’ll make you sigh and say, “He’s the one.”
The Best Friend Trope

by Ashia, Romancing the Books and More

I've always loved the best friend trope in my romances in whatever form--sister/brother's best friend, best friend's brother/sister, or the main characters themselves being best friends. There's something magical in the process of best friends becoming lovers. How did they transition into the new state? What about the angst/conflict they feel?

I've read a lot of this trope, and I have to say that not all authors can do it successfully. Or give me so much feelings--good ones. One of these authors is Lauren Layne in her book BLURRED LINES. I mean, sure, there were some problems/holes in the setup/story, but for the most part, it was pretty good.

Here are some romances in 2018 utilizing the "best friend" trope that I'm gonna be checking out:

Greta loves her job as assistant librarian. She loves her best friend, Will, the high school civics teacher and debate coach. Then she meets Mac in the poetry section of the library, and she is smitten. The only problem is that he seems to be a different person in his texts than in his face-to-face conversation.

When the Franklin Library is threatened with closure, Greta leaps into action. She arranges for a "battle of the bands" book jam, etc. Through it all, she slowly realizes that it is Will, not Mac, who she turns to for support and encouragement. Mac has the looks; Will has the heart. How can she choose between them?

Eleanor is content with her boring life—mostly. She’s even fine being the quirky sister in a bevy of beauties. So imagine her surprise when one of her brother’s Sydney Smoke mates hits on her at an engagement party. Her. The weird sister, who wears vintage dresses and prefers her books to parties.

Bodie is shocked the next morning to find the soft, sexy virgin who seduced him with corsets is his best friend’s little sister. If he could kick his own ass, he would. And two months later, she’s got an even bigger surprise for him. Now he needs to convince the corset-loving wallflower that he loves her uniqueness if they’ve got a chance at forever. He always did love a challenge...

What do you do when a "fake" relationship is so much better than the real thing?

Hope Donnigan is finally getting her life together. Now if only she could get her mother to understand that.

J.T. Webster fell for Hope months ago at his sister’s wedding. So when she propositions him to be her fake boyfriend to get her mother off her back, he's all in. J.T. had no idea their pretend relationship would be better than anything real he's ever had...

My BFF and roommate took off for two weeks and secretly planned for her hot older brother to stay over with me while his apartment is being renovated. Nate Wallis--the guy I’ve had a raging lady boner for since we met.

One night of watching me work the camera and he broke his own rule: don’t screw your little sister’s best friend. And it was pretty glorious, if I do say so myself. Maybe this will work out okay after all...

Tennyson Clark is getting a life. First step: quitting her job as assistant to Dominic Anderson, star quarterback, her best friend…and the man she’s been secretly in love with for years. Enter steps two and three: new job and new man.

Football is Dominic's life, and all his focus needs to be on the game. But Tennyson is making that next to impossible with her mysterious new job and her sudden interest in online dating. What could be more exciting than finding a lover in the office? There are pro's and con's, as we shall see:

Pro:
1. Makes you look forward to going to the office
2. Being with your lover the entire day (you can then make sure he/she is not having any on the side)

Con:
1. Being with your lover the entire day (doesn't it get tiring after awhile?)
2. Destroys your concentration

Okay, the above is just for fun, because honestly, I really love office romances. You're with this person day in and day out, getting closer everyday, so of course it's no wonder you'd fall in love.

Here are some romances that I've been eyeing:

Brilliant graphic designer Ravi Tandel is ahead of the game—he's just been asked to present a top secret project at a huge conference in Seattle. All systems are go...until he learns his buttoned-up office nemesis is coming along for the ride.

Tristan Jones isn't really the gamer type, but he knows the back end of the video game business inside out. Together, he and Ravi will give an awesome presentation. If they survive the cross-country trip first.

And then, just like Cinderella, I have my night at the ball and a midnight kiss, and for a week all my sexy daydreams come true. That fake date changes my life in a way I could never imagine. It turns out, Harry wants me too...
